10 February 2010

Alfred Street to open on Monday

The appeal period for the Alfred Street reopening has ended and as no appeals have been lodged, Alfred Street will be opened again to traffic on Monday.

The Council made a decision in December to revoke the pedestrian mall in Alfred Street, however the street could not be opened to traffic until after an appeal period ended. This appeal period has now finished and no appeals have been lodged.

Before opening the road Council staff have contacted adjoining businesses to advise them of the timing of the re-opening of the section of Alfred Street between Victoria and Percival Streets.

Bollards will be removed and signage changed for the re-opening from Monday 15 February.
